

ALUMNI – Lucy C Clarke

In the first alumni news of the year we saw Lucy's classmate Lucy Clarke and her experiences of being a primary school teacher, Lucy also studied English Literature and History but also studied Theatre Studies and went on to study Applied Theatre Studies which she enjoyed. After she finished her degree she decided to do a bit of travelling and took a job teaching English as a foreign language in Hong Kong. Lucy enjoyed her time in Hong Kong and after a year working there with a wide range of students of different ages, nationalities and abilities she decided to return home and did a bit of travelling on the way.

When Lucy returned to England she got a job as a mental health and learning disabilities support worker and Lucy is learning British Sign Language as she knows it will be useful in her work in the future. Lucy's travels in the Far and Near East ignited her interest in other cultures and so she is studying for a Masters in Anthropology at UCL.
