

ALUMNI

Jenny Hicks left Kenilworth School in 2007 with 4 A grades in Art, History, Maths and Latin and she went on to study Ancient History and Egyptology at UCL.

After completing her BA she had a short break working before returning to UCL to do her Masters. She has just completed her PhD in 'the administration of the Seleukid empire' which she kindly paraphrases for us is 'what people did to collect taxes in Iraq in the third century BC'. After deciding that staying in university lecturing was not what she wanted she is currently training as a History teacher at Oxford University. She is also now deciding whether to publish her thesis or at least part of it.
