After hearing from the eldest brother last week Graham, Alex Miller too has developed an exciting career which has taken him to North America.

Having left Kenilworth School and Sixth Form with A level Maths, Physics and Technology Alex went on to study Architecture at Manchester University. After a couple of years working in the UK he decided to move to Vancouver, Canada where he has now been living for 3 years working on seismic upgrades of schools, higher education and institutional buildings. Alex has moved back to England at the end of May this year to work at an Oxford based architectural practice that specialise in automotive and industrial projects with clients such as Jaguar Land Rover, Red Bull Racing and Renault Formula One.

Next week we will hear what the two youngest Miller boys have been up to.
