Monday 13th June 2016

Dear Families,

The whole school had a memorable day on Friday when we came together, in different ways, throughout the day to celebrate the Queen's 90th birthday. Highlights of the day were the Revd Jonathan Shaw judging the art competition and leading the prize giving, children from different year groups spending time together to make crowns, Mrs Finney playing the National Anthem on her trumpet and the street-party style lunch for 100 children outside. The lasting memory of the day is the large, wooden bench with the commemorative plaque on, which has now been placed outside for children to sit and chat on during the day and for parents to wait on at home-time.

Thank you for encouraging the children to dress-up in purple, to enter the art competition and to generally get into the spirit of the day. The children's art works are still on display around the school, along with some photographs of the day, if you didn't get chance to see them on Friday.

Yours, Nicola Dudley - Head of School
