

British Values week was a great success and every child in the school experienced something- either a trip or a visitor- which will stay with them for some time. The reason for the week is to raise children's understanding of why this country is like it is. Thanks to Miss Hepworth for organising the week.

There are some great pictures of the visits which are on the school Twitter page. Twitter is a free app you can get for your smartphone. Once you have joined, it is a simple process of searching Old Oak Primary School. Then you will receive updates about events in school as they happen.

Please remember there is no INSET day after the holiday and that school begins again on Tuesday, 23rd April.

Have a good weekend.
