Revision Routine
Think about these questions

Have you made enough time to revise for your exams?
Are your revision techniques helping you to remember the topic?
Are you getting enough sleep to be able to concentrate?
Are you giving your revision enough attention?
Create a revision timetable

Could you do up to five hours of revision a night after school? Remember you need to plan for any homework you get given, and you need to plan to have time to eat dinner. You also need to include breaks. Don’t tire yourself out.

Could you do more revision at weekends?

Do you have more time at the weekend to do revision?
You need to plan your timetable to be realistic.
Will you actually revise all day Saturday and Sunday?
What time will you start revision at the weekend?
When will you take breaks?

You need to make sure you have a balance between doing enough revision for your exams and enough time to relax. If you make your revision timetable realistic, then you are more likely to be able to stick to it.
Tips for revision routine

1. Make a revision timetable that you will be able to stick to
2. Increase your revision when study leave begins
3. Take regular breaks and reread your revision so far before you start revising again
4. Make sure you get enough sleep each night to be able to concentrate
